

Dear ,

This month is the Month of the Military Child, and I'm writing to ask if the _____ schools would like to participate in a worldwide project designed to show recognition and support for military children. The project is called LIFT LINK LOVE, and it's a call for personalized strips of paper, or links, that will be collected at a central location and fashioned into one long paper chain of military family support.

Students are invited to write friendly messages, sign their names, decorate their links using tape and glue to affix personal or sentimental items/flair to their links - anything their creative nature tells them to do. These links are made in support of all military family members - the service members, their parents, their friends, their spouses, and their children... anyone who has experienced the horror of having a loved one go to war.

The 1% of the population shouldering ten years of government military action will be so grateful to see this kind of support from the school children of _____.

For more information about the project itself, please visit <http://likeitfortime.com/lift-link-love>

I'll be happy to send (or drop off) a sheet of simple instructions, and well as collection envelopes, to make it easy and fun for your students to participate. The deadline for the school project is April 29, and on that day, I will either pick up the envelope(s) of links, or you are free to mail them in yourself (the address will be included on the instruction sheet).

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me via email at _____ or by phone: _____

Sincerely,
